THREE NEW T. K. K. VESSELS TO CALL GOING TO JAPAN

Asano Asks Government Permission for South American Liners to Carry Passengers

(Special to Hawaii Shippo)
TOKIO, Oct. 12.—At the urgent request of President S. Asano of the T. K. K. Company, the department of communication of Japan has given the company permission to make Honolulu a port of call for three of its steamers plying between the Orient and South America. The three steamers which will carry passengers between Honolulu and Japanese ports are the Inyo Maru, Koyo Maru and Seijo Maru.

It is understood that the boats will make the trip from the Orient to South America, but will not carry any passengers between Honolulu and South American ports.
No date has been set for the first call at Honolulu, but it is probable that the company will at once take advantage of the permission granted by the government and the next boat will probably be routed via Honolulu.

NEW AUTO BUS SERVICE BEGUN TO FORT RUGER

Running on a 20-minute schedule the first auto bus of the Honolulu Rapid Transit Company was put into active work this morning at 6 o'clock from the end of the Kaimuki carline out in the Fort Ruger district. The Fort Ruger bus, which will handle traffic from the Kaimuki end of the King street car line, will probably be put on the run tomorrow.

"We are well pleased with the showing made today," said Manager C. G. Ballentine of the transit company this afternoon. "We have established the system as a permanent one, and about the only doubt that exists in our minds now is just what hours we shall run on. The amount of traffic will have much to do with determining that. So far things look very promising for the new system."

CHARLIE CLARK MUST PAY FIFTY FOR JOY RIDING

Charlie Clark, road overseer, who has been up for trial since September 11 on a charge of joy riding in a county automobile when intoxicated, was found guilty before Judge Monarrat this morning and fined $50 and $3 costs.

After innumerable delays and postponements, the case was brought before the police court for the first hearing last week and was then held over until this morning.

John W. Cathcart fought the case out with Charles Chillingworth, and contested every inch of the prosecution's progress bitterly. Cross examinations of the witnesses was in every case, severe.

The prosecution brought out the fact that Clark had had four drinks of gin during the morning and produced two witnesses who swore that they had seen Clark in an intoxicated condition on the 14th.

ABANDONED LAND ON HAWAII COMES BACK INTO PUBLIC DOMAIN

Governor Pinkham today signed an agreement to a formal request from Joshua D. Tucker, commissioner of public lands, to the effect that the territory of Hawaii should again take possession of Lot 98 of the Kaapehu homestead at Hamakua, Hawaii. The lot was formerly held by Apasua Tojaka, who secured it by purchase lease, but who has now totally abandoned the property. According to the territorial law, property abandoned in this manner comes into the possession of the government. Such cases are said to be not unusual in the land office.

John Cramer, a blacksmith of Cooks Falls, N. Y., was shot and killed by his son, William Cramer. It is claimed that young Cramer took his mother's part in a quarrel.

William E. Fitch, former president and general manager of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railroad, died at Marquette, Mich.

AMERICANS HAVE ENORMOUS TRADE WITH JAPANESE

S. Sheba Tells Ad Club That It Amounts to $450,000 Each Month, and is Growing

Directly or indirectly the minimum amount that every Japanese in Hawaii spends with American merchants is $5 a month. A total of $450,000 is therefore spent with the American merchants each month by the Japanese population of 90,000 now in the territory.

The question is therefore not how the American merchant can get more trade from the Japanese, but how the Japanese merchant can get the trade of their own countrymen from the hands of the American merchants who are swallowing it.

These are a few of the startling statements which were made today by S. Sheba, editor and president of the Hawaii Shippo, in his talk before the Ad Club at their luncheon, where he was asked to speak on the question: "How can American merchants get more trade from the Japanese?"

"I have been falsely advertised as an orator," began Sheba, "but I protest that I am not an orator at all. I have never touched a drop of grape juice. However, I accept the flattering terms with which I have been announced before my speech, because I believe in boosting each other and if you want to call me the Hawaii Sprockels and the Hawaii Edison, I have no objections. As a rule there is too much knocking here. We are too close together. We count each other's rings and stickpins and are jealous, and then we knock."

In Transition Stage.
"As for the manner in which Americans can get the trade of the Japanese, which is the subject of my talk, I must remind you that the Americans must somewhat study the psychology of the Japanese people before they can get our trade. The Japanese merchants who will be your rivals are in a transition stage."

"At one time they were the lowest class in Japan. They resorted to tricks and cheating and deceptions in order to reach prosperity, and they are now still somewhat influenced by the old traditions. They are trying to follow the methods of the Occidental merchant but they have only partly imitated him so far. Consequently the American merchant finds it hard to displace the Japanese merchant in his trade with his countryman. He has to meet unusual competition. Still the Japanese is spending enormous sums with you."

"The average plantation laborer gets $20 to $25 a month. He saves $12.50 and spends $12.50. Board costs him $6, as he eats chiefly rice and fish. Clothing costs $2, tobacco and incidentals, $1; social expenses and contributions to temples and other incidental expenses $3. Of this the money spent for clothes goes almost entirely into the hands of American merchants, and also the money spent upon tobacco. One-quarter of the board money is spent upon American products, 50 cents a month on other things goes into American pockets. Consequently $5 a month is spent by the lowest paid Japanese laborer for American products, or at least $450,000 or $500,000 a month. More American Products Used."

"How much more do you want from the new generation of Japanese growing up here, more and more of American products. They dress in the Occidental fashion, while the grown women use the old fashioned kimono and wooden shoes. They eat more butter and flour and use less rice. Therefore every day you are sure to get more and more Japanese trade. One Japanese merchant told me that he sold 65 per cent American goods and only 35 per cent Japanese."

"In fact my eyes have been opened today by my investigations. It is time for the Japanese people to awaken in self defense and find out how they can take some of the trade away from the Americans. We must start a campaign amongst you."

"But if you want to win more Japanese trade you must remember that the Japanese is just what you are: a fact that there is a value in advertising, and therefore you must advertise in Japanese papers. Let the advertisements be prepared in the Japanese way."

Circuit Judge Whitney today granted to George H. Garnett a divorce from Margaret Garnett, the grounds being desertion.

Further trial of the case of James Stewart & Company of New York against Col. J. S. Spaulding, an action for debt, will be had in Circuit Judge Whitney's court tomorrow morning, beginning at 8:30 o'clock.
